NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST JULY 2017

1. STATUTORY INFORMATION

BoingBoing Resilience CIC is a private company, limited by guarantee, registered in England and Wales. The company's registered number and registered office address can be found on the Company Information page.

2. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of preparing the financial statements

These financial statements have been prepared in accordance with the provisions of Section 1A "Small Entities" of Financial Reporting Standard 102 "The Financial Reporting Standard applicable in the UK and Republic of Ireland" and the Companies Act 2006. The financial statements have been prepared under the historical cost convention.

Significant judgements and estimates

No significant judgements have had to be made by the directors in preparing these financial statements.

Turnover

Turnover represents grants, training and consultancy fees received.

Tangible fixed assets

Depreciation is provided at the following annual rates in order to write off each asset over its estimated useful life.

Computer equipment - 33% on cost

Financial instruments

The company only enters into basic financial instruments transactions that result in the recognition of financial assets and liabilities like trade and other accounts receivable and payable, loans from banks and other third parties, loans to related parties and investments in non-puttable ordinary shares.

Financial assets that are measured at cost and amortised cost are assessed at the end of each reporting period for objective evidence of impairment. If objective evidence of impairment is found, an impairment loss is recognised in profit or loss.

Taxation

Taxation for the year comprises current and deferred tax. Tax is recognised in the Income Statement, except to the extent that it relates to items recognised in other comprehensive income or directly in equity.

Current or deferred taxation assets and liabilities are not discounted.

Current tax is recognised at the amount of tax payable using the tax rates and laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the balance sheet date.

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is recognised in respect of all timing differences that have originated but not reversed at the balance sheet date.

Timing differences arise from the inclusion of income and expenses in tax assessments in periods different from those in which they are recognised in financial statements. Deferred tax is measured using tax rates and laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the year end and that are expected to apply to the reversal of the timing difference.

Unrelieved tax losses and other deferred tax assets are recognised only to the extent that it is probable that they will be recovered against the reversal of deferred tax liabilities or other future taxable profits.

Hire purchase and leasing commitments

Rentals paid under operating leases are charged to surplus or deficit on a straight line basis over the period of the lease.

FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST JULY 2017

2. ACCOUNTING POLICIES - continuedPension costs and other post-retirement benefits

The company operates a defined contribution pension scheme. Contributions payable to the company's pension scheme are charged to profit or loss in the period to which they relate.

Impairment of non-financial assets

At each reporting date non-financial assets not carried at fair value, like goodwill and plant, property and equipment, are reviewed to determine whether there is an indication that an asset may be impaired. If there is an indication of possible impairment, the recoverable amount of any asset or group of related assets, which is the higher of value in use and the fair value less cost to sell, is estimated and compared with its carrying amount. If the recoverable amount is lower, the carrying amount of the asset is reduced to its recoverable amount and an impairment loss is recognised immediately in profit or loss.

PART 1 - GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE COMPANY'S ACTIVITIES AND IMPACT

In the space provided below, please insert a general account of the company's activities in the financial year to which the report relates, including a description of how they have benefited the community.

During the 2016-17 financial year, Boingboing has seen its training and consultation work continuing to develop and grow with new accredited courses developed. It has increased its research work working closely in collaboration with the Centre of Resilience for Social Justice at the University of Brighton. We have seen an increase in funds being secured to deliver on specific projects that aim to support resilience building with socially excluded children and families, as well as co-training young people so that they can co-deliver our training with older trainers. We have also developed young people's capacities in research methods, including working overseas in developing countries, most notably South Africa. Boingboing has benefitted the community in the following ways:

- 1). In total, 10 free to attend Resilience Forums were held in Brighton and these were attended by over 300 practitioners, researchers, parents, carers and young people to share and learn about resilience. 1 resilience forum was held in Blackpool and this was attended by over 40 people from the local community.
- 2). Over 50 lectures / seminars were delivered on resilience to various groups including teachers, practitioners, parents, researchers and young people (excluding training sessions delivered in Blackpool – see continuation sheet).

(If applicable, please just state "A social audit report covering these points is attached").

(Please continue on separate continuation sheet if necessary.)

PART 2 – CONSULTATION WITH STAKEHOLDERS – Please indicate who the company's stakeholders are; how the stakeholders have been consulted and what action, if any, has the company taken in response to feedback from its consultations? If there has been no consultation, this should be made clear.

We continue to work with the following stakeholder groups in the UK and overseas:

*Practitioners in the statutory, community and voluntary sectors

*Parents, carers and young people experiencing disadvantage

*Academics, university students and researchers

*Senior managers, policy developers and commissioners of social care and health services

The work of Boingboing work is collaborative in nature, as we seek to establish relationships that span the knowledge base within practice, research and the lived experience. We also aim to co-design, co-produce and co-deliver everything that we do.

Our continuing 'Co-designing Resilience' project that seeks to develop new resilience training materials is based on co-production with various community groups including Arts Connect, Community21, and young people from Blackpool and Brighton. They have a leading voice in what should be developed and how the new training tools should look.

In South Africa we worked closely with the community organisation Khulisa Social Solutions and the University of Pretoria to support young people's research on their community's resilience to drought. The blogs on the following links summarise some of the work completed:

PART 1 - GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE COMPANY'S ACTIVITIES AND IMPACT

3). In Blackpool we are on a town-wide mission to change the way that adversity and particularly mental health issues amongst 10 to 16-year olds are perceived, avoided and responded to. Working with the Council and as part of the Big Lottery funded HeadStart programme implementing a 'Resilience Revolution' we have delivered 40 resilience training sessions in the year to over 600 parents, teachers, practitioners, students and young people.

4). Our 'Co-designing Resilience' project that was initiated to develop our Resilience Framework and to make it more interactive and interesting for young people, continued to progress. We held further workshops and development meetings with local community groups, students, academics and practitioners.

5). Further development of the Academic Resilience Approach training materials took place during the year and a university accredited course was developed for course students to attain credits towards an undergraduate or Masters degree.

6). We continued to employ some young people from disadvantaged backgrounds to co-deliver training sessions and we also provided volunteering opportunities for other young people and disadvantaged adults to get involved with the work that we do.

7). The boingboing website was refreshed and moved across onto a new platform to make it adaptive and easier to read on phones and tablets. This helped to lead to its continued growth in popularity with over 115,000 hits in the year (www.boingboing.org.uk). Free resilience resources continued to be added to the site leading to thousands of downloads during the year.

8). Our Twitter following grew to over 6,400 people. This Twitter following enabled our work to reach a large, global audience.

9). We partnered with the University of Brighton on innovative research projects that took our resilience work to new communities. For example, in Greece, a more community-based response to the challenges of supporting child mental health has been established as a result of our co-research with colleagues in Crete. In South Africa we trained 49 young people living in informal settlements so that they could research resilience to drought in their own communities and support policy makers with implementing changes.

PART 2 – CONSULTATION WITH STAKEHOLDERS

Our training and consultation offering continues to expand, based on the ongoing feedback that we receive. After each training session/lecture/seminar, feedback is obtained on the elements that worked and on the aspects that could be improved going forward. Our training, lectures and seminars are then revised based on the feedback received.

In Blackpool we supported a learning week which was attended by many HeadStart stakeholders, including 15 young people. Together we produced a blog about the learning week which you can see here:

<http://www.boingboing.org.uk/reflections-blackpool-headstart-learning-week-blog/>

We also provide bespoke training sessions where we tailor our offering to the specific requirements of the audience. We hold twice yearly away days with staff and volunteers to co-develop future visions for Boingboing and consolidate ongoing working policies and practices.
