Company Report

Unique Property Syndicates Ltd., was incorporated at Companies House on 15th July 2011 and assigned the official number SC403621. The group of subscribers and individuals who ensure the unique property syndicates run well and create new, viable jobs, started the original entity and registered it at Companies House on 9th April 1999. This previous incarnation was known as Unique Consortia PLC (SC195145). That endeavour had a lifespan of 6 years 8 months until the directors sought a vote to take the public limited company (plc) to a private formation. The reason being that it costs a disproportionate amount of money to remain and maintain a public limited company. Particularly one based outside the London M25 orbital motorway and where property prices can be a fraction of London City property valuations. The plc format can be very good for London and the Home Counties based projects and we may well revisit the public limited company format again for future projects in the South East of the UK. However, the relatively high administrative expense of red-tape had the opportunity-cost loss of around four new jobs each year because these plc expenses lead to a more efficient corporate organisational structure.

So in Autumn 2005 the earlier public limited company (plc) was taken private and split into three relatively standard "Ltd" companies. The original plc was dissolved in an orderly manner. All debts were paid and the company closure was purely an administrative house-keeping procedure during corporate reorganisation.

After the 2007 worldwide Banking Crisis, the original subscribers of Unique Property Syndicates wanted to increase the job creation element, so in May 2007 our counterpart Argyll Group Private Equity was commenced. The brief was: To purchase, renovate and mentor new businesses by re-opening...

- > Defunct shops.
- > Closed-down hotels.
- > Empty industrial units.

To date, our 565 (383 UPS + 182 Argyll Group) subscribers and members across the range of companies have renovated in excess of 64 buildings via the three main platforms in the UK and created in excess of 154 new jobs. Next year, 2021 is scheduled to encompass a determined effort aimed at creating 20 new jobs on the mainland and 11 new jobs on the island of Arran. The island of Arran renovation relates to a major hotel renovation plus planning permission for a supermarket. However, the Coronavirus pandemic has caused supply-chain logistic problems to our other non-dormant, fully operational companies. Contractors plus staff and visiting members of the public safety will always take precedent over project renovations. Fortunately with careful planning (for example): www.scotslion.co.uk/safety it is possible to ensure good progress is made, even during the Covid pandemic.

There are live discussions following an approach from a television production company for our subscribers to assist in a new format television series similar to the "24 hours in A&E" etc.

"24 Months To Save The High Street" "

That is a working title and may transform into something by a different description. Hardly a week goes by without a researcher from one television company or another contacting our subscribers website: www.uniquepropertybulletin.co.uk looking for assistance in a new format for the much sought after genre of television programmes that feature property.

The next property programme format that comes anywhere close to the 21 series, 210 episodes, 22 year old "Grand Designs" property programme, or the 31 series, 240 episode, 22 year old "DIY SOS" + "DIY SOS The Big Build" and ubiquitous: 24 series, 1000+ episode 18 year old "Homes Under The Hammer" series will be the holy Grail of commissioning editors up and down the land. It looks likely that even if the current major network television production company fails to launch the "24 Months to Save The High Street", series, the fact that our subscribers already helped save a High Street between 2002 and 2004 with 14 closed shops plus a derelict pub and closed hotel being re-opened augers well for a tv production company to run with this concept.

Failing which, our subscribers have sufficient funds and are keen on the idea that a new television production company may well be established from our Unique property Syndicate friends.

Given the damage that the Covid pandemic has done to lives and livelihoods all around the world, if we can illustrate in real-world ways how it is possible to bring the High Street back to life - and we can - then it would seem remiss not to do precisely that.

The High Street does not need to die. The planning permission our subscribers successfully gained to open a NEW village shop as part of the Sannox hotel project proves that there is an appetite for the retail and office supply sector. You just need to be fair with the rents, keep them as low as possible whilst ensuring shareholders are happy and also provide Dragons' Den style support to newstart businesses.

However, the way our various businesses are structured have been affected by an unfortunate accident aboard the CalMac ferry MV Caledonian Isles on April 2019 where one of our company officers sustained a serious head injury. Several hours after the injury aboard that Arran ferry our founder suffered a stroke. As a consequence, our autonomous group of companies have had to re-organise the way of working. Specifically so that there is suitable administration staff employed to support members here that are disabled.

This reorganisation also means that our company: Unique Property Syndicates Ltd., is being mothballed and made "dormant" in terms of the Companies Act. The majority of administrative capability is now being conducted by the sister company Scotslion Ltd. Further details can be found here...

Lastly, for this report, if we can help other new businesses, please get in touch. There is a contact form on that website for anyone wishing to get in touch. Please also note, our new HQ offices in Arbroath are being designed to be over-engineered in protecting staff and clients and visitors. Therefore you may require to utilise new technology. This will be evident at the premises and also on our various websites.
